The Cambridge Ancient History, Volume 1, Part 1 Iorwerth Eiddon Stephen Edwards, Cyril John Gadd, Nicholas Geoffrey Lempriere Hammond, 1980 The Cambridge Ancient History I. E. S. Edwards, C. J. Gadd, N. G. L. Hammond, 1970-12-02 The present volume begins with an account of what is known about the remotest geological ages and comprises chapters on the different kinds of evidence concerning man and his physical environment up to the end of the Predynastic Period in Egypt and the parallel stages of development in Mesopotamia Persia Anatolia Palestine Cyprus Greece and the Islands To trace the history of these very early times it is necessary to rely chiefly on material remains since writing had not then been invented The text offers a setting against which the cultural progress of the historical epoch can be viewed Archaeological investigation may be expected to bring to light more evidence to fill some of the present gaps in our knowledge but already it is clear that the gulf between historical and prehistorical times in much of the ancient world is narrower than was once supposed The Cambridge Ancient History I. E. S. Edwards, C. J. Gadd, N. G. L. Hammond, E. Sollberger, 1973-05-03 Volumes I and II of The Cambridge Ancient History have had to be entirely rewritten as a result of the very considerable additions to knowledge which have accrued in the past forty five years For the same reason it has also been necessary to increase the size of the volumes and to divide each of them into two separately published parts The individual chapters have already appeared as fascicles but without maps indexes and chronological tables which for practical reasons have been reserved for these volumes Some additions and corrections have also been made in order to bring the text as far as possible up to date Together the new volumes provide a history of Egypt and the Ancient Orient including Greece and the Aegean region down to 1000 BC in a form suitable for both specialist and student Volume II Part I deals with the history of the region from about 1800 to 1380 BC This was the era of Hammurabi in Western Asia the Hyksos and warrior kings of the Eighteenth Dynasty in Egypt and the Minoan and early Mycenaean civilizations in Crete and mainland Greece The Cambridge Ancient History I.
