Borwein, Matthew P. Skerrett, 2011-07-15 Thirty years ago mathematical as opposed to applied numerical computation was difficult to perform and so relatively little used Three threads changed that the emergence of the personal computer the discovery of fiber optics and the consequent development of the modern internet and the building of the Three M's Maple Mathematica and Matlab We intend to persuade that Maple and other like tools are worth knowing assuming only that one wishes to be a mathematician a mathematics educator a computer scientist an engineer or scientist or anyone else who wishes needs to use mathematics better We also hope to explain how to become an experimental mathematician while learning to be better at proving things To accomplish this our material is divided into three main chapters followed by a postscript These cover elementary number theory calculus of one and several variables introductory linear algebra and visualization and interactive geometric computation
