Decolonial Feminist Community Psychology Floretta Boonzaier, Taryn van Niekerk, 2019-07-13 This edited volume seeks to critically engage with the diversity of feminist and post colonial theory to counter hegemonic Western knowledge in mainstream community psychology In doing so it situates paradigms of thought and representation that capture the lived experiences of those in the global South Specifically the book takes an intersectional approach towards its reshaping of community psychology centering African black postcolonial and decolonial feminist critiques in its 1 critique of existing hegemonic Euro American community psychology concepts theories and practice 2 proposal of new feminist indigenous and decolonial methodological approaches and 3 real life examples of engagement research dialogue and reflexive qualitative psychology practice The book concludes with an agenda for theorization and research for future practice in postcolonial contexts The volume is relevant to researchers practitioners and students in psychology anthropology sociology public health development studies social work urban studies and women s and gender studies across global contexts Book Review Digest ,1997 The New York Times Book Review ,1986-07 Presents extended reviews of noteworthy books short reviews essays and articles on topics and trends in publishing literature culture and the arts Includes lists of best sellers hardcover and paperback The Human Life Review ,1985 The Aesthetic Relation Gérard Genette,1999 One of the best known continental theorists writing today G rard Genette here explores our aesthetic relation to works of art Through an analysis of the views of thinkers ranging from David Hume and Immanuel Kant to Monroe C Beardsley Arthur Danto and Nelson Goodman Genette seeks to identify the place of the aesthetic in a theory of artistic appreciation His discussion is rich in detailed examples drawn from all of the arts The Aesthetic Relation is a companion volume to The Work of Art Immanence and Transcendence published by Cornell in 1997 Taken together the two books offer a comprehensive theory of art which addresses the work of art as at once object and action Genette maintains that our aesthetic relation to all types of objects presupposes that special attention is paid to their outward aspect rather than to their usefulness when appraising them Such appraisals while wholly subjective and temporary are expressed as objective and universal judgments about the items in question Further he asserts that our aesthetic relation to works of art in particular is based on an awareness of an aesthetic intention that defines an object as a work of art as well as on an awareness of a work s position in its historical and generic field Information Status and Noncanonical Word Order in English Betty J. Birner, Gregory L. Ward, 1998-01-01 This work provides a comprehensive discourse functional account of three classes of noncanonical constituent placement in English preposing postposing and argument reversal and shows how their interaction is accounted for in a principled and predictive way In doing so it details the variety of ways in which information can be given or new and shows how an understanding of this variety allows us to account for the distribution of these constructions in discourse Moreover the authors show that there exist broad and empirically verifiable functional correspondences within classes of syntactically similar constructions Relying heavily on corpus data the authors identify three interacting dimensions along which individual constructions may vary with respect to the pragmatic constraints to which they are sensitive old vs new information relative vs absolute familiarity and discourse vs hearer familiarity They show that preposed position is reserved for information that is linked to the prior discourse by means of a contextually licensed partially ordered set relationship postposed position is reserved for information that is new in one of a small number of distinct senses and argument reversing constructions require that the information represented by the preverbal constituent be at least as familiar within the discourse as that represented by the postverbal constituent Within each of the three classes of constructions individual constructions vary with respect to whether they are sensitive to familiarity within the discourse or assumed familiarity within the hearer's knowledge store Thus although the individual constructions in question are subject to distinct constraints this work provides empirical evidence for the existence of strong correlations between sentence position and information status The final chapter presents crosslinguistic data showing that these correlations are not limited to English

Translating the Visual Rachel Weissbrod, Ayelet

Kohn, 2019-04-25 This book offers insights into the translation and adaptation of illustrated texts in an era in which visual texts are perceived as a dominant perceptual frame for interpreting social and cultural phenomena Using source texts including illustrated books comics graphic novels and animated films the authors analyze their translations and adaptations to address the works as multimodal entities in which even the replacement of one component affects the entire whole Interviews with the artists writers illustrators and animators will shed more light on the observations This volume's unique focus on the visual mode and the impact of its replacement on the multimodal whole is a topic that has not attracted as much attention as the translation of the verbal component and will appeal to students and researchers of translation and adaptation popular culture media and communication and children's literature alike
