The Autopoiesis Of Architecture A New Framework For Architecture:

The Autopoiesis of Architecture, Volume I Patrik Schumacher, 2011-04-20 Take a theoretical approach to architecture with The Autopoiesis of Architecture which presents the topic as a discipline with its own unique logic Architecture's conception of itself is addressed as well as its development within wider contemporary society Author Patrik Schumacher offers innovative treatment that enriches architectural theory with a coordinated arsenal of concepts facilitating both detailed analysis and insightful comparisons with other domains such as art science and politics He explores how the various modes of communication comprising architecture depend upon each other combine and form a unique subsystem of society that co evolves with other important autopoietic subsystems like art science politics and the economy The first of two volumes that together present a comprehensive account of architecture's autopoiesis this book elaborates the theory of architecture's autopoiesis in 8 parts 50 sections and 200 chapters Each of the 50 sections poses a thesis drawing a central message from the insights articulated within the respective section The 200 chapters are gathering and sorting the accumulated intelligence of the discipline according to the new conceptual framework adopted in order to catalyze and elaborate the new formulations and insights that are then encapsulated in the theses However while the theoretical work in the text of the chapters relies on the rigorous build up of a new theoretical language the theses are written in ordinary language with the theoretical concepts placed in brackets The full list of the 50 theses affords a convenient summary printed as appendix at the end of the book The second volume completes the analysis of the discourse and further proposes a new agenda for contemporary architecture in response to the challenges and opportunities that confront architectural design within the context of current societal and technological developments

"The" Autopoiesis of Architecture Patrik Schumacher, 2011 Volume II of The Autopoiesis of Architecture In late 2011 John Wiley Sons is publishing the second volume of this work by Patrik Schumacher The new edition extends the scope of the first volume by proposing a new agenda for contemporary architecture that rises to current social and technological challenges Book Jacket

Architectural Technicities Stavros Kousoulas, 2022-07-15 This book poses a simple question how is this architecture possible To respond it will embark on a captivating journey through many singular architectural concepts The entasis of Doric columns Ulysses and desert islands will outline an architectural act that moves beyond representation A ferryman who stutters will present two different types of architectural minds A stilus and a theory of signs will reconsider the ways architects can develop a particular kind of intuition while architectural technicities will bring forth a membranous and territorial understanding of architecture Finally as a melody that sings itself a larval architecture will be introduced bringing space and time together Assisting this endeavour the thought of philosophers like Gilles Deleuze Felix Guattari Gilbert Simondon and Raymond Ruyer will meet the latest developments in fields like affect theory cognitive sciences environmental studies and neuroanthropology Eventually by the end of this book the readers from architecture students and researchers to academics and practitioners with an interest in theory will have been exposed to a comprehensive and original philosophy of architecture and the built environment

Craft Theory and Contemporary Architecture Grant Alford, 2025-05-28 This book offers a comprehensive exploration of craft theory in relation to contemporary architecture Craft is an old and familiar idea but the line between craft and art or craft and mere manufacturing for example is notoriously hard to describe In architecture a similarly blurred line between the design process on the one hand and the physical making of buildings on the other lies at the center of various debates about what it means to do architecture The growth and development of craft theory in recent years suggest new insights into these architectural debates but situating the meaning of craft within architecture within today's technological landscape is a complex problem Alford responds to this challenge by collecting various narratives from craft theory and other fields and discerning among them new lenses through which to view contemporary architectural practice Episodes from this expanded view of craft in architecture go beyond predictable accounts of Ruskin and Morris to envision new models of practice new ways of engaging other building professionals and new ways for architects to understand their own labor and the nature of how and what kinds of things they themselves craft Architecture is changing and within the ongoing story of craft explored in this book are new and surprising ways to understand design and construct the built environment Written for students and scholars this book challenges and extends the legacy of craft thinking in architecture Analogical City Cameron McEwan, 2024-01-18 In Analogical City Cameron McEwan argues for architecture's status as a critical project. McEwan revisits architect Aldo Rossi as a paradigmatic figure of the critical rational tradition, studying a neglected aspect of his thought: the analogical city. To excavate its potential, McEwan develops a grammar of the analogical city under the headings of Imagination, Transformation, City, Multitude, and Project. McEwan argues that the analogical city is critical, collective, and emancipatory. Analogical thought and understanding cities as analogical might open the conditions of possibility for rethinking the critical project in architecture. At a time when the humanities and the sciences are threatened by irrational thought, from climate denial to post-truth narratives, and when architecture has seemingly disavowed its critical capacity and political possibility through its commodification as an instrument of the neoliberal city, McEwan offers critical strategies, conceptual tools, figures of thought, and knowledge practices to articulate modes of thinking and acting differently within architectural criticism and practice. Today, knowledge is a common terrain of struggle, and thought requires constant reinvention. The task of architecture and critique more broadly must be to interpret the world in order to change it. Consequently, Analogical City proposes modes for imagining the city, the subject, and the world otherwise, towards a more egalitarian and critical architecture of the city. Ultimately, the analogical city is not a fully developed theory, nor is it only an intuitive, poetic, or purely formal practice, as some critics propose. McEwan argues that the analogical city is poetic and political; it always refers beyond itself towards a collective and critical project of the city, and yet it invites a series of formal, spatial, and graphic operations comprising erasure and negativity, followed by substitution and remontage.

Transdisciplinary Urbanism and Culture Quazi Mahtab Zaman, Igea Troiani, 2017-07-07 This book presents a collection of critical, multi-disciplinary essays on urban research by established and early career researchers who participated in the 9th Annual AHRA Architectural Humanities Research Association Research Student Symposium. The symposium was held at the Scott Sutherland School of Architecture and Built Environment, Robert Gordon University in Aberdeen, from Saturday 19th May to Sunday 20th May 2012. The authors highlight contemporary research issues in urban development, in search of new and fresh approaches that reflect the changing principles and praxis of urban conditions. The common ambition is to create new lines of knowledge in urban research. Due to socio-economic, political, and technological changes to urban production and patterns of consumption, and a drive for inter-cross, multi, and transdisciplinary practice, the essays also reflect the ideological shift currently underway in academic faculties and external research organisations.

The Autopoiesis of Architecture, Volume II Patrik Schumacher, 2012-04-24 This is the second part of a major theoretical work by Patrik Schumacher, which outlines how the discipline of architecture should be understood as its own distinct system of communication. Autopoiesis comes from the Greek and means literally self-production; it was first adopted in biology in the 1970s to describe the essential characteristics of life as a circular self-organizing system, and has since been transposed into a theory of social systems. This new approach offers architecture an arsenal of general comparative concepts It allows architecture to be understood as a distinct discipline which can be analyzed in elaborate detail while at the same time offering insightful comparisons with other subject areas such as art science and political discourse On the basis of such comparisons the book insists on the necessity of disciplinary autonomy and argues for a sharp demarcation of design from both art and engineering Schumacher accordingly argues controversially that design as a discipline has its own sui generis intelligence with its own internal logic reach and limitations Whereas the first volume provides the theoretical groundwork for Schumacher's ideas focusing on architecture as an autopoietic system with its own theory history medium and its unique societal function the second volume addresses the specific contemporary challenges and tasks that architecture faces It formulates these tasks looking specifically at how architecture is seeking to organize and articulate the complexity of post fordist network society The volume explicitly addresses how current architecture can upgrade its design methodology in the face of an increasingly demanding task environment characterized by both complexity and novelty Architecture's specific role within contemporary society is explained and its relationship to politics is clarified Finally the new global style of Parametricism is introduced and theoretically grounded

Play Among Books Miro Roman,Alice _ch3n81,2021-12-06 How does coding change the way we think about architecture This question opens up an important research perspective In this book Miro Roman and his AI Alice_ch3n81 develop a playful scenario in which they propose coding as the new literacy of information They convey knowledge in the form of a project model that links the fields of architecture and information through two interwoven narrative strands in an infinite flow of real books Focusing on the intersection of information technology and architectural formulation the authors create an evolving intellectual reflection on digital architecture and computer science
