Amos Hatch,2007 How can qualitative researchers make the case for the value of their work in a climate that emphasizes so called scientifically based research What is the future of qualitative research when such approaches do not meet the narrow criteria being raised as the standard In this timely collection editor J Amos Hatch and contributors argue that the best argument for the efficacy of qualitative studies in early childhood is the new generation of high quality qualitative work This collection brings together studies and essays that represent the best work being done in early childhood qualitative studies descriptions of a variety of research methods and discussions of important issues related to doing early childhood qualitative research in the early 21st century Taking a unique re conceptualist point of view the collection includes materials spanning the full range of early childhood settings and provides cutting edge views by leading educators of new methods and perspectives

Speech Is My Hammer Max A. Hunter, 2022-09-30 With Speech Is My Hammer Max Hunter draws on memoir and his own biography to call his readers to reimagine the meaning and power in literacy Defining literacy as a spectrum of skills abilities attainments and performances Hunter focuses on dispelling literacy myths and discussing how Black male artists entertainers professors and writers have described their own literacy narratives in self conscious ambivalent terms Beginning with Frederick Douglass's My Bondage My Freedom W E B Dubois's Soul of Black Folks and Langston Hughes's Harlem Renaissance memoir The Big Sea Hunter conducts a literary inquiry that unearths their double consciousness and literacy ambivalence He moves on to reveal that for many contemporary Black men the arc of ambivalence rises even higher and becomes more complex following the civil rights and the Black Power movements and then sweeping sharply upward once again during the War on Drugs Hunter provides rich illustrations and probing theses that complicate our commonsense reflections on their concealed angst regarding Black authenticity respectability politics and masculinity Speech Is My Hammer moves the reader beyond considering literacy in normative terms to perceive its potential to facilitate transformative conversations among Black males

The Kindness of Children Vivian Gussin Paley, 2009-06-01 Visiting a London nursery school Vivian Paley observes the schoolchildren's reception of another visitor a handicapped boy named Teddy who is strapped into a wheelchair wearing a helmet and barely able to speak

A predicament arises and the children's response simple and immediate offers Paley the purest evidence of kindness she has ever seen. In subsequent encounters the Teddy story draws forth other tales of impulsive goodness from Paley's listeners. Just so it resonates through this book as one story leads to another taking surprising turns intersecting with the narrative unfolding before us and illuminating the moral meanings that children may be learning to create among themselves. Paley's journey takes us into the different worlds of urban London, Chicago, Oakland, and New York City, and to a close-knit small town in Michigan's Upper Peninsula. Her own story connects those of children from nursery school to high school and circles back to her elderly mother whose experiences as a frightened immigrant girl helped through a strange school and a new language by another child reappear in the story of a young Mexican American girl. Thus the book quietly brings together the moral life of the very young and the very old. With her characteristic unpretentious charm, Paley lets her listeners and storytellers take us down unexpected paths where the meeting of story and real life make us wonder: Are children wiser about the nature of kindness than we think they are?

A Child's Work Vivian Gussin Paley, 2009-09-15. The buzz word in education today is accountability. But the federal mandate of no child left behind has come to mean curriculums driven by preparation for standardized tests and quantifiable learning results. Even for very young children, unstructured creative time in the classroom is waning as teachers and administrators are under growing pressures to measure school readiness through rote learning and increased homework. In her new book, Vivian Gussin Paley decries this rapid disappearance of creative time and makes the case for the critical role of fantasy play in the psychological, intellectual, and social development of young children. A Child's Work goes inside classrooms around the globe to explore the stunningly original language of children in their role playing and storytelling. Drawing from their own words, Paley examines how this natural mode of learning allows children to construct meaning in their worlds, meaning that carries through into their adult lives. Proof that play is the work of children: this compelling and enchanting book will inspire and instruct teachers and parents as well as point to a fundamental misdirection in today's educational programs and strategies.

Portals of Promise Debbie Pushor, the Parent Engagement Collaborative, 2013-10-30. Working with parents is a significant aspect of educators' roles, yet it is rare to find curriculum in teacher education programs designed to prepare individuals to consider in philosophical, theoretical, and pedagogical ways who they will be in relationship with parents and why. Schools therefore remain hierarchical structures in which parents are marginalized in relation to decisions affecting teaching and learning. This book begins with Pushor's conceptualization of a curriculum of parents: a curriculum which explores beliefs and assumptions about parents; a vision for education in which educators work alongside parents and family members in the learning and care of children; and a desire for reform. She describes a curriculum of parents in the form of three graduate teacher education courses which she lived out in relationship with students. Graduate students then capture their experiences immersed in this curriculum: what they each took up, how it shaped their knowledge, attitudes, and practices, and how they lived it out as they returned to their classrooms.

schools and early learning centres This book is a storied account of their intense immersion in a curriculum of parents and the resulting impact living that curriculum has had on who they are in relation to parents and families It is an honest and vulnerable account of their shared and individual journeys They puzzle over the complexities and the successes of their work and the resulting impact This is not a book of best practice but an invitation to other educators to consider as they did what they do and how it could be different

Literacy and Learning in the Content Areas Sharon Kane,2017-07-05 The 3rd Edition of Literacy Learning in the Content Areas helps readers build the knowledge motivation tools and confidence they need as they integrate literacy into their middle and high school content area classrooms Its unique approach to teaching content area literacy actively engages preservice and practicing teachers in reading and writing and the very activities that they will use to teach literacy to their own students in middle and high school classrooms Rather than passively learning about strategies for incorporating content area literacy activities readers get hands on experience in such techniques as mapping webbing anticipation guides booktalks class websites and journal writing and reflection Readers also learn how to integrate children s and young adult literature primary sources biographies essays poetry and online content communities and websites into their classrooms Each chapter offers concrete teaching examples and practical suggestions to help make literacy relevant to students content area learning Author Sharon Kane demonstrates how relevant reading writing speaking listening and visual learning activities can improve learning in content area subjects and at the same time help readers meet national content knowledge standards and benchmarks

Brain Framing Dr. Linda Karges-Bone,2011-09-01 Brain Framing is a book of ideas for thinking about thinking in the classroom ideas to help us frame the brains of students in ways that are productive powerful and personal This book will help teachers to engage brains in three fresh ways framing student learning into more personalized experiences that utilize new research on the brain the body and the spirit creating brain friendly classroom environments that link sensory and cognitive experiences in ways that reduce stress for both the teacher and the student and organizing content into meaningful chunks and layers that fit into the unique frames of students brains

Sticks and Stones Jack Zipes,2013-11-15 Have children ever really had a literature of their own In Sticks and Stones Jack Zipes explores children s literature from the grizzly moralism of Slovenly Peter to the hugely successful Harry Potter books and argues that despite common assumptions about children s books our investment in children is paradoxically curtailing their freedom and creativity Sticks and Stones is a forthright and engaging book by someone who cares deeply about what and how children read

Play at the Center of the Curriculum Judith Lieberman Van Hoorn,2007 For Play courses or Early Childhood Curriculum courses in Early Childhood Education departments and Child and Family Studies departments This book discusses the value of play in diverse early childhood classrooms and how curriculum can support play Key changes to this edition include the integration of standards and examples of how encouraging certain types of play can meet standards expanded coverage of cultural diversity and supporting play in children with special needs and expanded coverage of integrating the content areas More than any other books on play this text focuses on how content areas can be taught and standards met through play

Writing the School House Blues Anne Haas Dyson, 2021 Anne Dyson confronts race and racism head on with this ethnographic study of a child's efforts to belong to be a child among children Follow the journey of a small Black child Ta Von as he moves from a culturally inclusive preschool through the early grades in a school located in a majority white neighborhood Readers will see Ta Von encountering obstacles but finding agency and joy through writing and music making especially his love of the blues Most attempts at desegregating schools are studied by reducing individual children to demographic statistics and test scores This book instead provides a child's perspective on challenges to classroom inclusion Ta Von's journey demonstrates that it is within children's peer worlds formed in response to institutional policies and practices like desegregation initiatives standardized testing and a curricular focus on so called basic literacy skills that inequity becomes part of the experience of childhood This book examines policies about literacy testing and teaching including the potential power of the written word and of the arts Few researchers have had a career so embedded inside the lives of children in a classroom context as Anne Haas Dyson This book should be on every literacy researcher's shelf It is a culmination of years of Dyson's relentless fight against deficit framings of children and the deep inequalities that continue to persist in the world Jennifer Rowsell professor of literacies and social innovation University of Bristol

The Truth About the Church Patricia Bakies, 2020-01-31 Sarah Pierce is a curious sixteen year old growing up in a poor dysfunctional family Living in Ohio now with her grandmother Sarah can't help but notice the big beautiful stone church across the street Her Mama always told her We aren't bred to be no church people People have done bad things in their family and besides she doesn't even own any of those fancy church clothes people wear Sarah spent the last six years caring for and protecting her little sister Hailey Settled now in Ohio there was something about the big stone building that caught her attention Sarah knew it was too late for her to be church people but was it possible there was still a chance God would accept her little sister One day Sarah walked right inside the church just to have a quick look but she couldn't handle the new world she just entered and ran out as fast as she could Deep down Sarah knew her Mama was right they had no business being in church The days to come after that first church visit are filled with challenges anxiety disappointments and truths about God and the church Sarah never even imagined Now Sarah has a decision to make the most important decision of her life Will she go back in
