

STATISTICS IN A NUTSHELL

Need to learn statistics for your job? Want help passing that statistics course? Statistics in a Nutshell is a clear and concise introduction and reference for anyone who's new to the subject. This book gives you a solid understanding of statistics without the numbing complexity of most textbooks.

Each chapter presents easy-to-follow descriptions illustrated by graphics, formulas, and plenty of solved examples. Before you know it, you'll be applying statistical reasoning and techniques to everything from basic concepts of probability and hypothesis testing to multivariate analysis. Statistics in a Nutshell includes:

- Introductory material—Learn basic concepts of measurement and probability theory, data management for statistical analysis, research and experimental design, and how to critique statistics presented by others
- Basic inferential statistics—Discover the concepts of correlation, dichotomous and categorical data, and the distinction between parametric and nonparametric statistics
- Advanced inferential techniques—Learn the General Linear Model, ANOVA and MANOVA, and multiple linear regression
- Specialized techniques—Use and interpret business and quality improvement statistics, medical and public health statistics, and educational and psychological statistics

If you need to know how to perform most common statistical analyses—and how to use a wide range of statistical techniques without getting in over your head—this is the book for you.

Sarah Boslaugh, Ph.D., has been a statistical analyst for 15 years and currently teaches Intermediate Statistics at Washington University Medical School in St. Louis.

Paul Andrew Watters, Ph.D., CITP, is an associate professor in the School of Information and Mathematical Sciences and Centre for Informatics and Applied Optimization (CIAO) at the University of Ballarat in Victoria, Australia.
