

Take Private Process Overview

Execution Methods

Most MLP take privates have been executed through a negotiated merger; typically a negotiated merger has a longer statutory time table, however, a tender offer may introduce execution risk if the price is not accepted by enough unit holders

	Negotiated Merger	Tender Offer
Description	- Take private could be structured as a negotiated merger - SCR negotiates directly with SIRE Conflicts Committee (either publicly or privately)	- Take private could be structured as a tender offer followed by the exercise of the limited call right - Most precedents have included a negotiation with Conflicts Committee to solicit board support
Benefits	- Potentially greater deal certainty - Potentially requires higher premium to ensure success of the tender - Substantial market precedent	- Shorter statutory timetable absent process delays - No back-end unitholder vote required if the limited call threshold (80%) is reached. Note that the tender basically acts like a unitholder vote and approval of the transaction
Considerations	Longer statutory time table absent process delays	- Possibility of a failed tender offer if premium is not accepted by market - Limited market precedent
