Reschly,2010-06-10 Family and community involvement are increasingly touted as a means of improving both student and school level achievement This has led to an increase in policies initiatives and goals designed to address family involvement in schools Once recognized and implemented such family school partnerships can lead to the following benefits enhanced communication and coordination between parents and educators continuity in developmental goals and approaches across family and school contexts shared ownership and commitment to educational goals increased understanding of the

Dwyer,2018-08-06 Despair over the reported inadequacies of public education leads many people to consider religious schools as an alternative James G Dwyer demonstrates however that religious schooling is almost completely unregulated and that common pedagogical practices in fundamentalist Christian and Catholic schools may be damaging to children He presents evidence of excessive restriction of children's basic liberties stifling of intellectual development the instilling of dogmatic and intolerant attitudes as well as the infliction of psychological and emotional harms including excessive guilt and repression and especially among girls diminished self esteem Courts legal and political theorists and the public typically argue that families and religious communities are entitled to raise their children as they see fit and that the state must remain neutral on religious matters Dwyer proposes an alternative framework for state policy regarding religious schooling and other child rearing practices urging that the focus always be on what is best from a secular perspective for the affected children He argues that the children who attend religious schools have a right to adequate state regulation and oversight of their education States are obligated to ensure that such schools do not engage in harmful practices and that they provide their students with the training necessary for pursuit of a broad range of careers and for full citizenship in a pluralistic democratic society
