The Digital Future of English Simone Murray, 2025-07-18 More than any other academic discipline literary studies is the creation of print culture How then can it thrive in the digital era Early 1990s predictions of the book's imminent demise presented a simplistic either/or choice between the legacy of moribund print and triumphalist digital technology Yet we have grown to experience the two media as complexly interdependent and even complementary Clearly digital does not kill print But literary studies in the digital era cannot simply resume business as usual It is urgently necessary to reconsider the discipline's founding assumptions in light of digital technology The digital era prompts a rethinking of literary studies' object of study as well as its methods theories audiences and pedagogical practices What counts as literature necessarily shifts in an age of proliferating born-digital texts and do-it-yourself DIY online publication Where should literary studies sit institutionally and how might it graft contextually oriented social sciences methods onto its traditionally humanistic mode of textual analysis Why should literary study continue to marginalize emotional responses to texts when online communities bond via readerly affect Who is the audience for literary criticism in an age where expertise is routinely challenged yet communication with global book-loving publics has never been technologically easier Finally how can we utilize digital tools to rejuvenate literary studies pedagogy and help English staff better connect with millennial age students Literary studies has been convulsed for decades by debates over electronic literature and more recently digitally aided distant reading But these discussions still mostly confine themselves to demarcating our proper object of study We need to think more expansively about digital technology's impact on the underpinning tenets of the discipline Literary Media Studies is pitched at fellow literary scholars book historians media theorists cultural sociologists digital humanists and those working at the interface of these converging disciplines It models constructive engagement with contemporary digital culture Most importantly it brings a burst of sorely needed optimism to the question of literary studies' digital future

The Future of German Studies Tina-Karen Pusse, Olga Springer, 2025-11-03 Across Europe and North America language and literature departments are contracting at a pace that would have been unthinkable two decades ago Courses are frozen programmes merged or dissolved and the study of specific languages German not least among them is too often dismissed as a dispensable ornament of the past Beneath this development lies a familiar and deeply flawed assumption that in an age of translation driven by large language models and frictionless global communication the value of linguistic competence is decreasing If we can converse through our devices why still learn to speak and think in another tongue As we know language learning is about much more than communication It is about metacognition about understanding how thought takes shape in and through language But even more fundamentally it forces us to ask what communication itself really means Generative AI Large language models may allow us to make ourselves understood at a basic level but true communication is not about transmission alone At its core lies understanding others their assumptions histories and emotional registers and developing the sensibility to perceive meaning within a specific cultural and linguistic horizon Machines can translate words but they cannot translate worlds The work of learning a language remains at its core an ethical practice an act of attentiveness to otherness In addition the future of Large Language Models relies on constant new high quality human input and human feedback loops evaluating for example the quality of translations Without this it has been shown the quality of their outputs deteriorates quickly There is also the matter of resilience The assumption that so called Artificial Intelligence will always be available affordable and free from ideological inflections attributes already debatable in many of its current incarnations is a form of collective wishful thinking What happens when access to such tools is increasingly monetized or politically restricted What happens in times of war electricity outages censorship or digital collapse Linguistic self sufficiency our ability to read think and communicate across cultures without mediation may soon be more than a scholarly virtue It may be a civic necessity
