opportunities and limitations posed by external forces and how their subjectivity has been shaped by their transnational experiences and has changed as a result. Having been through the globalization of the last part of the twentieth century are Japanese themselves and overseas consumers of Japanese culture really becoming more cosmopolitan? If so, what does it mean for Japan's national culture and the traditional sense of national belonging among Japanese people?

TV Drama in China Ying Zhu, Michael Keane, Ruoyun Bai, 2008-10-01. This collection of essays brings together the first comprehensive study of TV drama in China. Examining in depth the production, distribution and consumption of TV drama, the international team of experts demonstrate why it remains the pre-eminent media form in China. The examples are diverse, highlighting the complexity of producing narrative content in a rapidly changing political and social environment. Genres examined include the revisionist Qing drama, historical and contemporary domestic dramas, anti-corruption dramas, pink dramas, Red Classics, stories from the Diaspora and sit-coms. In addition to genres, the collection explores industry dynamics, how TV dramas are marketed and consumed on DVD, and China's aspirations to export its television drama rights. The book provides an international and cross-cultural perspective with chapters on Taiwanese TV drama in China, the impact of South Korean drama and trans-border production between the Mainland and Hong Kong.

Cultural Studies and Cultural Industries in Northeast Asia Chris Berry, Nicola Liscutin, Jonathan D. Mackintosh, 2009-05-01. These timely essays highlight regional cross-fertilization in music, film, new media and popular culture in Northeast Asia, including analysis of gender and labor issues amid differing regulatory frameworks and public policy concerning cultural production and piracy.

Southeast Asian Independent Cinema Tilman Baumgärtel, 2012-01-01. The rise of independent cinema in Southeast Asia following the emergence of a new generation of filmmakers is among the most significant recent developments in global cinema. The advent of affordable and easy access to digital technology has empowered startling new voices from a part of the world rarely heard or seen in international film circles. The appearance of fresh, sharply alternative and often very personal voices has had a tremendous impact on local film production. This book documents these developments as a genuine outcome of the democratization and liberalization of film production. Contributions from respected scholars, interviews with filmmakers, personal accounts and primary sources by important directors and screenwriters collectively provide readers with a lively account of dynamic film developments in Southeast Asia. Interviewees include Lav Diaz, Amir Muhammad, Apichatpong Weerasethakul, Eric Khoo, Nia Dinata and others.

Tilman Baumgärtel taught film and media studies in Germany, Austria and the Philippines before joining Royal University of Phnom Penh in 2009. He has curated international film series and art exhibitions and has also published books on independent cinema, Internet art, computer games and the German director Harun Farocki. Structure, Audience and Soft Power in East Asian Pop Culture Beng Huat Chua, 2012-03-01. East Asian pop culture can be seen as an integrated cultural economy emerging from the rise of Japanese and Korean pop culture as an influential force in the distribution and reception networks.

of Chinese language pop culture embedded in the ethnic Chinese diaspora Taking Singapore as a locus of pan Asian Chineseness Chua Beng Huat provides detailed analysis of the fragmented reception process of transcultural audiences and the processes of audiences formation and exercise of consumer power and engagement with national politics In an era where exercise of military power is increasingly restrained pop culture has become an important component of soft power diplomacy and transcultural collaborations in a region that is still haunted by colonization and violence The author notes that the aspirations behind national governments efforts to use popular culture is limited by the fragmented nature of audiences who respond differently to the same products by the danger of backlash from other members of the importing country s population that do not consume the popular culture products in question and by the efforts of the primary consuming country the People s Republic of China to shape products through co production strategies and other indirect modes of intervention
