Global Trend Viral Romance Tiktok:

Global Chart Trends Gideon Fairchild, AI, 2025-02-22 Global Chart Trends explores why certain songs become global hits by examining the economic and cultural forces that shape musical success. It moves beyond simple observations of chart performance, diving into the interplay between music economics and global culture. The book reveals how macroeconomic factors such as GDP and internet access correlate with music consumption and highlights the significant role cultural variables like language and social values play in the reception of international music. The book traces the history of international music charts from vinyl to streaming, illustrating how globalization has transformed music distribution. By combining quantitative data like chart statistics and economic indicators with qualitative insights from case studies and industry interviews, it offers a nuanced analysis. The book offers practical implications for artists, record labels, and policymakers seeking to navigate the global music market. The analysis unfolds by first examining the economic determinants of chart success, then delving into the cultural landscape, and finally investigating the strategies used by industry players. This approach reveals that achieving international chart success requires understanding both economic conditions and cultural nuances, and the strategic marketing efforts of artists and labels.

Decolonising Digital Media and Indigenisation of Participatory Epistemologies

Fulufhelo Oscar Makananise, Shumani Eric Madima, 2024-08-13 The book provides valuable insights on decolonising the digital media landscape and the indigenisation of participatory epistemologies to continue the legacies of indigenous languages in the global South. It is one of its kind as it climaxes that the construction phase of self-determining and redefining among the global South societies is an essential step towards decolonising the digital landscape and ensuring that indigenous voices and worldviews are equally infused, represented and privileged in the process of higher-level communication, exchanging epistemic philosophies and knowledge expressions. The book employs an interdisciplinary approach to engage in the use of digital media as a sphere for resistance and knowledge transformation against the persistent colonialism of power through dominant non-indigenous languages and scientific epistemic systems. It further advocates that decolonising digital media spaces through appreciating participatory epistemologies and their languages can help promote the inclusion and empowerment of indigenous communities. It indicates that the decolonial process can also help to redress the historical and ongoing injustices that have disadvantaged many indigenous communities in the global South and contributed to their marginalisation. This book will appeal to undergraduate and graduate students, scholars and academics in communication, media studies, languages, linguistics, cultural studies and indigenous knowledge systems in higher education institutions. It will be a valuable resource for those interested in epistemologies of the South, decoloniality, postcoloniality, indigenisation, participatory knowledge, indigenous language legacies, indigenous artificial intelligence and digital media in the Fourth Industrial Revolution.
