The Craft of Editing Michael Alley, 2013-03-08 You are a hired gun of sorts a manager scientist or engineer called upon to edit a document Perhaps you are overseeing a long report or thesis reviewing a journal article or providing comments on a proposal For the document before you what changes do you suggest How do you clearly and efficiently communicate those changes to the author How do you convince the author and the other editors that those changes are needed The answers to these questions define how you edit someone's writing In business engineering and science the process of editing causes much strife In fact my experience in teaching professional writing over the past fifteen years has been that editing is the number one complaint that professionals have about the process of documenting their work Many professionals complain that this editing seems to arise more from whim than from logic that what flies in one document is often shot down in another Others complain that editors change too much essentially inserting their own individual styles Still others complain that the sign off process is so inefficient and taxing that they sometimes do not document work they know should be documented While in many cases these complaints are unfounded in many others they are legitimate This book addresses those complaints that are legitimate by showing managers scientists and engineers how to make their editing both more effective and more efficient

Multimedia and Groupware for Editing Adelino Santos, 2012-12-06 Multimedia techniques enable the production of non traditional documents containing enormous amounts of information The production of such documents by a group as opposed to an individual is the main subject of this book A group needs to communicate and multimedia technology can be used to enhance group communication How multimedia documentation and communication and groups of authors fit together are the main questions tackled The book describes the construction of a conceptual framework and the prototype system CoMediA as well as how the system was used to conduct a group effectiveness study involving two applications cooperative software engineering and data production Thus the work relates to multimedia communication cooperative editing and group support and effectiveness

Corporate Social Responsibility and Public Libraries Dr. Velaga Venkatappaiah, Dr. M. Koteswara Rao, D. Murali Dhar, 2011-10-07 Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR) has been on the agenda in India for quite some time. The private sector is generally more active in this area than the Governmental and public sector, and the situation is slowly changing. The concept of CSR is finally coming out of the purview of doing social good and is fast becoming a business necessity. This approach to CSR is gaining ground, and many corporate houses are realizing the benefits they get in business by extending help to their workers, local community, and society at large. There are many corporate companies and voluntary foundations in India who are doing commendable work in education, health, environment, and energy under CSR. CSR can also be extended to public libraries because public libraries are considered as social institutions providing basic information for social, economic, and cultural development of citizens and to sustain lifelong learning for students. Public libraries play a vital role in disseminating existing knowledge and promote the creation of new knowledge.
