

- Stopwatch.

PROCEDURE:

- Measure the inside diameter of the Permeameter and record as D.
- Measure the length 'L' of the Permeameter, between the centers of the two piezometric tubes.
- Calculate the volume of the specimen needed for length L.
- For the given bulk-density and moisture constant calculate the weight of the soil, needed for the volume in step 3.
- Place the specimen in the Permeameter and allow water to flow through the sample for at least 10 min in order to saturate it. Longer periods are sometimes required to ensure complete saturation of the sample. Bubbles that appear (entrapped air) should be removed by tapping gently on the Permeameter or using other means.
- When constant flow conditions have been achieved, measure the hydraulic head 'h' across the sample.
- Using a 500 or 1000 cu-cm container (preferable 1000 cu-cm) record the time 't' required to collect 1,000 cu-cm of water. Repeat two or three additional times until two runs agree reasonably well.
- Measure and record the temperature of the test water as T °C.
- Compute the K value at test temperature, also compute K₂₀ (co-efficient of permeability at 20C
