

Media Guidelines For Toddlers (Ages 1-4)

Media is everywhere. Here's how to integrate technology into your toddler's life in a healthy way.

How should my toddler be using digital media?

- A. Babies and young children do not truly understand what they are seeing on a screen, therefore the experience cannot enhance knowledge.
- B. Limit exposure. Children under 18 months should not have access to technology; after 18 months 1 hour per day of high quality programming is ideal. Handheld devices not recommended. No electronics at night.
- C. Lead by example: parents should try to limit tablet/electronic use around young children.
- D. Parents should not let young children use media alone. Encourage conversation, interactive play, and traditional toys and games.
- E. Leave tablets at home as much as possible. Alternatively, only use on specified outings, such as going out to dinner, etc.
- F. Toddlers will be upset when asked to stop using technology- give time warnings to help with the transition when time is up.

Navigating Media's Influence Through Childhood and Adolescence

Kate S. Kurtin, Mary Ellen McCormick, 2022-08-30 Navigating Media's Influence Through Childhood and Adolescence moves through research and questions that are relevant to practicing pediatricians and therapists in their everyday practice. As we navigate post pandemic life where screen time was unrestricted in most homes, this book has never been more important. Written by a pediatrician and a professor of media effects, this book is a vital resource for practicing mental health clinicians, counselors, psychologists, physicians, and students studying in those areas. Grounded in developmental theory, mass communication theory, current research, and acumen gained from years of clinical and teaching experience, this book gives professionals what they need to understand the colossal effect media is having on their patients. An aid to practitioners, this book is organized by developmental stage and matches specific questions related to media's effects with explicit research-based recommendations and explanations. It is intended to be a quick resource guide for the busy professional. Screen

Time Lisa Guernsey, 2012-03-20 As a mother, Lisa Guernsey wondered about the influence of television on her two young daughters. As a reporter, she resolved to find out. What she first encountered was tired advice, sensationalized research claims, and a rather draconian mandate from the American Academy of Pediatrics: no TV at all before the age of two. But like many parents, she wanted straight answers and realistic advice, so she kept digging. She visited infant perception labs and child development centers around the country. She interviewed scores of parents, psychologists, cognitive scientists, and media researchers, as well as programming executives at Noggin, Disney, Nickelodeon, Sesame Workshop, and PBS. Much of what she found flies in the face of conventional wisdom and led her to conclude that new parents will be best served by focusing on the three C's: content, context, and the individual child. Into the Minds of Babes is a fascinating book that points out how little credible research exists to support the AAP's dire recommendation. Parents, teachers, and psychologists will be relieved to learn positive approaches to using videos with young children and will be empowered to make their own informed choices.

Global Perspectives on Boarding Schools in the Nineteenth and Twentieth Centuries Daniel Gerster, Felicity Jensz, 2022-11-14 In the nineteenth and twentieth centuries, thousands of pupils attended boarding schools in various places across the globe. Their experiences were vastly different, yet they all had in common that they were separated from their families and childhood friends for a period of time in order to sleep, eat, learn, and move within the limited spatial sites of the boarding school. This book frames these boarding schools as a global and transcultural phenomenon that is part of larger political and social developments of European imperialism, the Cold War, and independence movements. Drawing together case studies from colonial South Africa, colonial India, Dutch Indonesia, early twentieth-century Nigeria, Fascist Spain, Ghana, Nazi Germany, nineteenth-century Ireland, North America, and the Soviet Union, this edited collection examines the ways in which boarding schools extracted pupils from their original social background in order to train, mold, and shape them so that they could fit into the perceived position in broader society. The book makes the broader argument that framing boarding schools as a global phenomenon is imperative for a deepened understanding of the global and transnational networks that linked people as well as ideas and practices of education and childhood in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries.
