Priming Translation Douglas Robinson,2022-09-15 This innovative volume builds on Michael S Gazzaniga s Interpreter Theory toward radically expanding the theoretical and methodological scope of translational priming research Gazzaniga s Interpreter Theory based on empirical studies carried out with split brain patients argues for the Left Brain Interpreter LBI a module in the brain s left hemisphere that seeks to make sense of their world based on available evidence and where no evidence is available primed by past memories confabulates coherence The volume unpacks this idea in translation research to test whether translators are primed to confabulate by the LBI in their own work Robinson investigates existing empirical research to test hypotheses on the translational links between the LBI and cognitive priming the Right Brain Interpreter and affective priming and the Collective Full Brain Interpreter and social priming Taken together the book seeks to open translational priming studies up to the full range of cognitive affective and social primes and to prime cognitive translation researchers to implement this broader dynamic in future research This book will be of interest to scholars in translation and interpreting studies especially those working in cognitive translation and interpreting studies Now is the Time of Monsters: An absolutely gripping psychological thriller with a shocking twist A.G. Suspense Peter Vorderer, Hans Jurgen Wulff, Mike Friedrichsen, 2013-12-16 This volume begins with the general assumption that suspense is a major criterion for both an audience's selection and evaluation of entertaining media offerings This assumption is supported not only by the popularity of suspenseful narratives but also by the reasons users give for their actual choice of media contents Despite this there is no satisfying theory to describe and explain what suspense actually is how exactly it is caused by films or books and what kind of effect it has on audiences This book's main objective is to provide that theory by bringing together scholars from different disciplines who are working on the issue The editors' goal is to reflect the state of the art as much as it is to highlight and encourage further developments in this area There are two ways of approaching the problem of describing and explaining suspense an analysis of suspenseful texts or the reception process Researchers who follow the more text oriented approach identify the uncertainty of the narrative outcome the threat or danger for the protagonist the play with time delay or other factors as important and necessary for the production of suspense The more reception oriented scholar focuses on the cognitive activities of audiences readers' expectations the curiosity of onlookers their emotions and their relationships with the protagonists A correspondence between the two seems to be quite difficult though necessary to determine Both perspectives are important in order to describe and explain suspense Thus the editors utilize the thesis that suspense is an activity of the audience reader onlooker etc that is related to specific features and characteristics of the text books films etc Their question is What kind of relation The answer comes from finding out how why and which elements of the text cause effects that are experienced as suspense Scholars from semiotics literary criticism cultural studies and film theory assess the problem from a text oriented point of view dealing primarily with the how and which Other scholars present the psychological perspective by focusing on the cognitive and emotional processes that underlie viewers experience of suspense that is the reception theory tries to answer the question of why suspenseful texts may be experienced as they are

Michael Haneke's Cinema Catherine Wheatley, 2009 Abstract Film, Art, and the Limits of Science Malcolm

Turvey,2025-04-26 There is currently a vigorous debate in film studies and related disciplines about the extent to which scientific paradigms like evolutionary psychology and neuroscience can explain the cinema and other artforms This debate tends to devolve into extreme positions with many film scholars and other humanists insisting that science has little or no role to play in the study of the arts while a minority contends that it is always needed to fully account for cultural phenomena like film Malcolm Turvey advocates for a more moderate position He argues that while the sciences can explain much about film and the other arts there is much about these phenomena that only humanistic methods can account for He thereby mounts a trenchant defence of the purpose and value of humanistic explanation one that nevertheless acknowledges and welcomes the legitimate contribution of the sciences to the study of the arts

Choice and Preference in Media Use

Silvia Knobloch-Westerwick,2014-07-25 Mediated messages flood our daily lives through virtually endless choices of media channels genres and content However selectivity determines what media messages we attend to and focus on The present book examines the factors that influence this selectivity Seminal books on selective media exposure were published in 1960 by Klapper and in 1985 by Zillmann and Bryant But an integrated update on this research field is much needed as rigorous selective exposure research has flourished in the new millennium In the contexts of political communication health communication Internet use entertainment consumption and electronic games the crucial question of how individuals choose what content they consume has garnered much attention The present book integrates theories and empirical evidence from these domains and discusses the related research methodologies In light of the ever increasing abundance of media channels and messages selective exposure has become more important than ever for media impacts This monograph provides a comprehensive review of the research on selective exposure to media messages which is at the heart of communication science and media effects It is required reading for media scholars and researchers and promises to influence and inspire future research
