The SAGE Handbook of Workplace Learning Margaret Malloch, Len Cairns, Karen Evans, Bridget N O'Connor, 2010-09-21 This Handbook provides a state of the art overview of the field of workplace learning from a global perspective The authors are all well placed theoreticians researchers and practitioners in this burgeoning field which cuts across higher education vocational education and training post compulsory secondary schooling and lifelong education The volume provides a broad based yet incisive analysis of the range of theory research and practical developments in workplace learning The editors draw together the three essential areas of Theory Research and Practice and Issues and Futures in the field of Workplace Learning In addition final chapters include recommendations for further development Key researchers and writers in the field have approached workplaces as the base of learning about work that is work based learning There has also been emerging interest in variations of this idea such as learning about through and at work Many of the theoretical discussions have centred on adult learning and some on learners managing their own learning with emphasis on aspects such as communities of practice and self directed learning In Europe and Australia early work in the field was often linked to the Vocational Education and Training VET traditions with concerns around skills competencies and on the job learning The idea that learning and workplaces had more to do with real lifelong and lifewide aspects than traditional training regimens has emerged in the last decade Since the mid 1990s the field has grown world wide as an area of theory research and practical work that has not only expanded the interest but has also legitimized the area as a field of study reflection and progress The SAGE Handbook of Workplace Learning draws together a wide range of views theoretical dispositions and assertions and provides a leading edge presentation by key writers and researchers with insight into the field and its current state It is a resource for researchers and academics interested in the scope and breadth of Workplace Learning

Work-based Learning , 2018 All of us learn when we work We watch our fellow workers and imitate them We make mistakes and do better the next time More experienced workers show us how to do things Much of this learning is not systematic and it is not formally organised It often occurs randomly or by chance and so some workers benefit while others do not Sometimes it is useful and sometimes it is not This handbook has been written to help policy makers and social partners organisations that represent employers and employees to understand some of the ways in which learning in the workplace can be encouraged and how its quality can be improved It is also intended to help them to understand some of the ways that such learning can be organised in a structured way so that it benefits learners enterprises and employees and so that it provides wider benefits for the labour market and the economy as a whole¹ Policy makers social partners and vocational education and training VET institutions schools colleges and training centres all sit outside individual enterprises The handbook tries to show what they can do in a practical way to help enterprises to introduce and improve structured work based learning It concentrates on work based learning that is part of VET but is not limited to this It has a particular focus on the needs and circumstances of middle and low income countries It tries to focus on opportunities on what is possible not on problems and barriers As far as possible it tries to suggest options rather than provide solutions The handbook deals with nine topics why work based learning matters features of middle and low income countries that should be taken into account when thinking about work based learning programmes the different types of work based learning programmes and what should be considered when choosing between them the relationship between work based learning and learning that takes place in classrooms some of the ways in which work based learning programmes can be started and expanded how to make sure that work based learning programmes are of high quality how to assess and recognise work based learning financing work based learning governing and managing work based learning programmes
