Helping Children with Autism Learn Bryna Siegel, 2003-06-05 Bryna Siegel gives parents of autistic children what they need most hope Her first book The World of the Autistic Child became an instant classic illuminating the inaccessible minds of afflicted children Now she offers an equally insightful thoroughly practical guide to treating the learning disabilities associated with this heartbreaking disorder The trouble with treating autism Siegel writes is that it is a spectrum disorder a combination of a number of symptoms and causes To one extent or another it robs the child of social bonds language and intimacy but the extent varies dramatically in each case The key is to understand each case of autism as a discrete set of learning disabilities each of which must be treated individually Siegel explains how to take an inventory of a child's particular disabilities breaks down the various kinds unique to autism discusses our current knowledge about each and reviews the existing strategies for treating them There is no simple cure for this multifarious disorder she writes instead an individual program with a unique array of specific treatments must be constructed for each child She gives practical guidance for fashioning such a program empowering parents to take the lead in their child's treatment At the same time she cautions against the proliferating but questionable treatments hawked to afflicted families She knows the panic to do something anything to help an autistic child and she offers parents reassurance and support as well as sensible advice combining knowledge from experience theory and research For parents autism in a child is heartbreaking But it need not be overwhelming Bryna Siegel offers a new understanding and a practical thoughtful approach that will give parents new hope

L. Masterson, 2025 This book presents an expanded view of infant and toddler development to equip educators with the knowledge dispositions and skills to create high quality settings and interactions so that every child can have the best start in life Readers are encouraged to consider the perspective of the child What does this classroom this teacher and this experience look like and feel like to each child How do teachers develop deeper understanding of development and learning in the context of children's families, cultures, and lives and apply this knowledge to teaching decisions. Each chapter offers resources, research, teaching tips, activities to empower children, and questions for reflection and discussion. This book addresses the need for cultural safety and coherence between families and programs, the need for rich language and learning opportunities throughout the day, strategies for observing children and using this information to design curriculum, individualized interactions to facilitate play-based learning, and teaching strategies that strengthen each child's emerging skills and capabilities.

Book Features: Shows how cultural beliefs, child-rearing practices, and language are active prime movers in infant and toddler teaching decisions and must be made visible through reflective practice. Illustrates insightful and caring strategies for building authentic relationships with families to guide planning and decision making. Applies NAEYC's developmentally appropriate practice position statement 2020 to the complex challenges encountered by teachers working with infants and toddlers and their families. Reimagines teaching through the lens of collaboration and creative thinking, anchoring these as essential foundations of active play, outdoor and nature play, and health and well-being.
