

A photograph of a two-lane asphalt road winding through a dense forest. The road has double yellow lines in the center and a white line on the right. The trees are tall and dark, and the sky is a pale, hazy blue. The overall mood is somber and reflective.

There's a thing that sometimes happens in your brain when you're the only survivor of a horrific accident. Part of you is happy because you're alive, but the rest of you is devastated. Then the sad part beats up the happy part until nothing is left, until all you feel is terrible sorrow for the people who didn't make it. And guilt. Guilt because you wonder if the Universe made a mistake. Guilt because you know you're not any better than those who died.
