Statues Without Shadows:

Statues Without Shadows Anna Swan, 2006-05-08 Anna grew up accepting that her parents were glamorous but mysterious figures who had both died by the time she was seven It was only when she was in her thirties that she discovered they had both committed suicide As she began to search for the truth about her parents she uncovered details about their fascinating and incredibly divergent backgrounds her father's family can trace their ancestry to King James II Her mother came from a Welsh mining family They met in 1950s literary London and fell in love But a year after Anna was born her mother was dead The book explores the nature of loss exile betrayal and Anna's own deep rooted instinct to refuse the horrors of her past and transcend the legacy of her parents This is a compelling moving story of uncovering the past in order to reclaim the future

Statues Without Shadows Anna Swan, 2006 Anna's parents should never have met He was the son of down at heel aristocrats she was the child of a mining family In 1950s London they inhabited an idealistic but brittle world of writers and journalists Anna was born in 1960 as their marriage was falling apart By the age of seven both her parents were dead Brought up by her grandparents believing her mother had died of cancer and her father of pneumonia it wasn't until her late twenties that Anna uncovered the disturbing truth about her parents glittering and early lives

Decolonisation of Materialities or Materialisation of (Re-)Colonisation Nhemachena, Artwell, Kangira, Jairo, 2017-11-28 Contemporary scholarly discourses about decolonising materialities are taking two noticeable trajectories the first trajectory privileges establishing connections relationships and associations between human beings and nature The second trajectory privileges restoration restitution reparations for colonial dispossessions lootings and disinheritance While the first trajectory presupposes that colonialism was merely about separation alienation and disconnections between human beings and nature the second trajectory stresses the colonialists dispossession disinheritance and privations of Africans Drawing on contemporary discourses about materialities in relation to semiotics non representationalism rhetoric ecocriticism territorialisation deterritorialisation and reterritorialisation translation animism science and technology studies this book teases out the intellectually rutted terrain of African materialities It argues that in a world of increasing impoverishment the significance of materialities cannot be overemphasised more so for the continent of Africa where impoverishment materialises in the midst of resource opulence The book is a pacesetter in no holds barred interrogation of African materialities

In Sensible Judgement Max Deutscher, 2016-05-23 Taking its bearings from classic texts including Plato Kant Hegel and Arendt this thoughtful and intriguing book provides philosophical reflection on what it is to judge and what judgement achieves alongside and sometimes in competition with thinking and willing Opening with the landmark Mabo High Court case in Australia and with detailed reference to other significant debates of judgement of the twentieth century Max Deutscher seeks to explore and explain approaches to the concepts of what is good right and legal Describing a connection between reason and grounds intrinsic to judgement he analyses and explores the tendency towards absolutism that displaces proper judgement By weaving concrete instances of judgement with philosophical thought Deutscher provides a fascinating phenomenology of practices of judgement that should appeal to all readers with an interest in legal philosophical and political thought
