Picard, 2020-03-25 This textbook focuses on how media and communications policy is made and what influences its design It explores the structures and processes in which policymaking takes place worldwide the factors that determine its forms influence its elements and affect its outcomes It explores how to analyze policy proposals evaluate policy and use policy studies approaches to examine policy and policymaking Truly international in scope it lays out the variety of political social economic and institutional influences on policy the roles of industries and policy advocates in the processes and issues and factors that complicate effective policymaking and skew policy outcomes This textbook is a valuable resource for advanced undergraduate and postgraduate students The 5G Myth William Webb, 2018-12-03 The 5G Myth explains why the vision of 5G the next generation in mobile telephony heralded as a huge advance in global connectivity is flawed and sets out a better vision for a connected future It explains why insufficient technological advances and inadequate profitability will be problems in the widespread implementation of 5G The book advocates a focus on consistent connectivity everywhere rather than fast speeds in city centers William Webb looks back at the transitions through previous generations of mobile telephony and shows what simple extrapolations of trends would predict for 5G He discusses whether the increases in speed and capacity promised by 5G are needed if the required technology is available whether a sound business case can be made for the deployment and asks why given this the industry appears so supportive of 5G He then puts forth the argument in favor of consistent connectivity of around 10Mbps everywhere as a more compelling vision and shows how it can be delivered via a mix of 4G and Wi Fi Subscribers to The Economist can access an article featuring this book at <https://www.economist.com/business/2019/08/24/vodafone-search-for-the-g-spot>
