The Clinical Psychology of Aging Martha Storandt, Ilene C. Siegler, Merrill F. Elias, 2012-10-20 It has been estimated that there are at least 2 500 000 adults 10% of the population above age 65 who are currently in need of some sort of mental health services Kramer Taube and Redick 1973 Other estimates are even higher e g Pfeiffer 1977 It is expected that this number will increase as the number of older adults increases over the next 40 years Probably less than 400 clinical psychologists are now providing services to this age group The number of elderly patients actually seen by these psychologists is very very small One national survey found that of 353 psychologists who reported that they had older clients only 495 individuals were seen for psychological testing and 1423 for psychotherapy in the one month just prior to the response Dye in press Assuming that the same individuals were not seen for both testing and therapy within the one month period a questionable assumption approximately 08% of the at least two and one half million older adults in need of psychological services are now being supplied with these services in some form or another Thus the need for increased involvement of clinical psychology with the aged is undeniable However few resources currently exist which will serve to increase the number of clinical psychologists trained to meet this need Probably less than 100 clinical psychologists living today have received any kind of formal graduate training in the clinical psychology of the aging Storandt 1977

The Clinical Psychology of Aging Martha Storandt, 1978 Handbook of the Clinical Psychology of Ageing Robert T. supplied with these services in some form or another Thus the need for increased involvement of clinical psychology with the aged is undeniable However few resources currently exist which will serve to increase the number of clinical psychologists trained to meet this need Probably less than 100 clinical psychologists living today have received any kind of formal graduate training in the clinical psychology of the aging Storandt 1977 Handbook of the Clinical Psychology of Ageing Robert T. Woods,1996-07-17 This handbook focuses on the key areas in the psychology of ageing Problems associated with later life development and change Emotional problems and depression associated with loss of physical health and with losses and changes in the areas of social relationship and personal identity The important clinical context of service delivery including community care family care giving and institutional aspects A broad range of therapeutic orientations including cognitive behavioural psychodynamic and family therapy approaches It is hard to do justice to the breadth of material in this book I have found the reading of it both stimulating and enlightening despite believing that I was familiar with most of the topics and have no doubt that I will be using it for reaching and reference purposes into the next millennium if there is one book a Clinical Psychologist working with older people needs this is it Steve Boddington International Journal of Social Psychiatry Clinical Psychology C. Eugene Walker,2013-11-21 The purpose of this book is to provide the reader with a survey of some of the major areas of clinical psychology No attempt has been made to include every area relevant to clinical psychology the choices are selective but represent the wide range of areas touched by clinical psychologists For some years I have felt the need for a book that provides students with more of a historical introduction and context from which to view current clinical psychology than is included in most textbooks The issues and problems of clinical psychology have been with us since the beginning of time however most psychological literature is written with the bias that anything older than five or ten years is not relevant Those who attempt to take a long range view of clinical psychology are sometimes able to recall the early development of the field in the 1930s and 1940s In this text I asked the authors to begin with a brief survey of ancient and medieval history to set the stage for a discussion of current research and developments in the field I hope that a presentation of this sort will provide the reader whether advanced undergraduate graduate or professional with a sense of perspective and context from which to view and understand clinical psychology
