Sorting Things Out Classification And Its Consequences Inside Technology:

Sorting Things Out Geoffrey C. Bowker, Susan Leigh Star, 2000-08-25 A revealing and surprising look at how classification systems can shape both worldviews and social interactions What do a seventeenth century mortality table whose causes of death include fainted in a bath frightened and itch the identification of South Africans during apartheid as European Asian colored or black and the separation of machine from hand washables have in common All are examples of classification the scaffolding of information infrastructures In Sorting Things Out Geoffrey C Bowker and Susan Leigh Star explore the role of categories and standards in shaping the modern world In a clear and lively style they investigate a variety of classification systems including the International Classification of Diseases the Nursing Interventions Classification race classification under apartheid in South Africa and the classification of viruses and of tuberculosis The authors emphasize the role of invisibility in the process by which classification orders human interaction They examine how categories are made and kept invisible and how people can change this invisibility when necessary They also explore systems of classification as part of the built information environment Much as an urban historian would review highway permits and zoning decisions to tell a city's story the authors review archives of classification design to understand how decisions have been made Sorting Things Out has a moral agenda for each standard and category valorizes some point of view and silences another Standards and classifications produce advantage or suffering Jobs are made and lost some regions benefit at the expense of others How these choices are made and how we think about that process are at the moral and political core of this work The book is an important empirical source for understanding the building of information infrastructures Caring Cash Tom

Neumark, 2023-02-20 Anthropological study of the impact of cash grants on the economic dynamics and relationships among Kenya's urban poor The idea of giving cash no strings attached to the poor has become popular in the 21st century While hardly a radical form of global redistribution these cash grants often known as unconditional cash transfers claim to offer a new type of care that is less paternalistic than other forms of assistance Caring Cash explores the caring practices that these grant experiments produced in the Nairobi ghetto of Korogocho After receiving the grants people there did not only look after themselves and their family friends lovers clients and patrons but also maintained the bonds that held them all together Putting his interlocutors' lives in conversation with ideas around care ethics and economies Tom Neumark argues that for those in the ghetto caring for relationships is as important as the care that takes place within relationships Seeing care in this way reveals the importance of managing one's proximity distance and detachment from others and raises questions about the disquieting decisions that allow people to live together amidst violence and poverty Media Technologies

Tarleton Gillespie, Pablo J. Boczkowski, Kirsten A. Foot, 2014-01-24 Scholars from communication and media studies join those from science and technology studies to examine media technologies as complex sociomaterial phenomena In recent years scholarship around media technologies has finally shed the assumption that these technologies are separate from and powerfully determining of social life looking at them instead as produced by and embedded in distinct social cultural and political practices Communication and media scholars have increasingly taken theoretical perspectives originating in science and technology studies STS while some STS scholars interested in information technologies have linked their research to media studies inquiries into the symbolic dimensions of these tools In this volume scholars from both fields come together to advance this view of media technologies as complex sociomaterial phenomena The contributors first address the relationship between materiality and mediation considering such topics as the lived realities of network infrastructure The contributors then highlight media technologies as always in motion held together through the minute unobserved work of many including efforts to keep these technologies alive Contributors Pablo J Boczkowski Geoffrey C Bowker Finn Brunton Gabriella Coleman Gregory J Downey Kirsten A Foot Tarleton Gillespie Steven J Jackson Christopher M Kelty Leah A Lievrouw Sonia Livingstone Ignacio Siles Jonathan Sterne Lucy Suchman Fred Turner Patently Contestable Stathis Arapostathis, Graeme

Gooday, 2013 An examination of the fierce disputes that arose in Britain in the decades around 1900 concerning patents for electrical power and telecommunications Late nineteenth century Britain saw an extraordinary surge in patent disputes over the new technologies of electrical power lighting telephony and radio These battles played out in the twin tribunals of the courtroom and the press In Patently Contestable Stathis Arapostathis and Graeme Gooday examine how Britain's patent laws and associated cultures changed from the 1870s to the 1920s They consider how patent rights came to be so widely disputed and how the identification of apparently solo heroic inventors was the contingent outcome of patent litigation Furthermore they point out potential parallels between the British experience of allegedly patentee friendly legislation introduced in 1883 and a similar potentially empowering shift in American patent policy in 2011 After explaining the trajectory of an invention from laboratory to Patent Office to the court and the key role of patent agents Arapostathis and Gooday offer four case studies of patent centered disputes in Britain These include the mostly unsuccessful claims against the UK alliance of Alexander Graham Bell and Thomas Edison in telephony publicly disputed patents for technologies for the generation and distribution of electric power challenges to Marconi's patenting of wireless telegraphy as an appropriation of public knowledge and the emergence of patent pools to control the market in incandescent light bulbs Technology and

Society, second edition Deborah G. Johnson, Jameson M. Wetmore, 2021-08-24 Writings by thinkers ranging from Rokea Sakhawat Hossain to Bruno Latour that focus on the interconnections of technology society and values Technological change does not happen in a vacuum decisions about which technologies to develop fund market and use engage ideas about values as well as calculations of costs and benefits In order to influence the development of technology for the better we must first understand how technology and society are inextricably bound together These writings by thinkers ranging from Bruno Latour to Francis Fukuyama help us do just that examining how people shape technology and how technology shapes people This second edition updates the original significantly offering twenty one new essays along with fifteen from the first edition

The book first presents visions of the future that range from technological utopias to cautionary tales and then introduces several major STS theories. It examines human and social values and how they are embedded in technological choices and explores the interesting and subtle complexities of the technology-society relationship. Remedying a gap in earlier theorizing in the field, many of the texts illustrate how race and gender are intertwined with technology. Finally, the book offers a set of readings that focus on the sociotechnical challenges we face today, treating topics that include cybersecurity, geoengineering, and the myth of neutral technology.

The Wildlife Enforcement Monitoring System Remi Chandran, 2025-10-02. In The Wildlife Enforcement Monitoring System, Remi Chandran chronicles a twenty-year journey to develop an innovative tool that enhances wildlife law enforcement information sharing through mapping technology. The book examines the intrinsic challenges of data sharing, which is shackled by conflicting regulations, ideologies, and institutional barriers. By exploring the changes in the wildlife trade policy system and the evolving roles of key actors, Chandran reveals how these shifts transformed the Wildlife Enforcement Monitoring System (WEMS). The novel WEMS initiative redefined data exchange practices and shaped the way for platforms like the Digital Public Infrastructure to tackle human-nature conflicts. More than a technical achievement, this is a story of collaboration, resilience, and shared knowledge.

Representation in Scientific Practice Revisited Catelijne Coopmans, Janet Vertesi, Michael E. Lynch, Steve Woolgar, 2014-01-03. A fresh approach to visualization practices in the sciences that considers novel forms of imaging technology and draws on recent theoretical perspectives on representation. Representation in Scientific Practice, published by the MIT Press in 1990, helped coalesce a long-standing interest in scientific visualization among historians, philosophers, and sociologists of science and remains a touchstone for current investigations in science and technology studies. This volume revisits the topic, taking into account both the changing conceptual landscape of STS and the emergence of new imaging technologies in scientific practice. It offers cutting-edge research on a broad array of fields that study information, as well as short reflections on the evolution of the field by leading scholars, including some of the contributors to the 1990 volume. The essays consider the ways in which viewing experiences are crafted in the digital era, the embodied nature of work with digital technologies, the constitutive role of materials and technologies from chalkboards to brain scans in the production of new scientific knowledge, the metaphors and images mobilized by communities of practice, and the status and significance of scientific imagery in professional and popular culture. Contributors: Morana Ala, Michael Barany, Anne Beaulieu, Annamaria Carusi, Catelijne Coopmans, Lorraine Daston, Sarah de Rijcke, Joseph Dumit, Emma Frow, Yann Giraud, Aud Sissel Hoel, Martin Kemp, Bruno Latour, John Law, Michael Lynch, Donald MacKenzie, Cyrus Mody, Natasha Myers, Rachel Prentice, Arie Rip, Martin Ruivenkamp, Lucy Suchman, Janet Vertesi, Steve Woolgar.

Memory Practices in the Sciences Geoffrey C. Bowker, 2008-02-15. How the way we hold knowledge about the past—in books, in file folders, in databases—affects the kind of stories we tell about the past. The way we record knowledge and the web of technical, formal, and social practices that surrounds it inevitably affects the knowledge that we record The ways we hold knowledge about the past in handwritten manuscripts in printed books in file folders in databases shape the kind of stories we tell about that past In this lively and erudite look at the relation of our information infrastructures to our information Geoffrey Bowker examines how over the past two hundred years information technology has converged with the nature and production of scientific knowledge His story weaves a path between the social and political work of creating an explicit indexical memory for science the making of infrastructures and the variety of ways we continually reconfigure lose and regain the past At a time when memory is so cheap and its recording is so protean Bowker reminds us of the centrality of what and how we choose to forget In Memory Practices in the Sciences he looks at three memory epochs of the nineteenth twentieth and twenty first centuries and their particular reconstructions and reconfigurations of scientific knowledge The nineteenth century s central science geology mapped both the social and the natural world into a single time package despite apparent discontinuities as in a different way did mid twentieth century cybernetics Both Bowker argues packaged time in ways indexed by their information technologies to permit traffic between the social and natural worlds Today s sciences of biodiversity meanwhile database the world in a way that excludes certain spaces entities and times We use the tools of the present to look at the past says Bowker we project onto nature our modes of organizing our own affairs

Acting in an Uncertain World Michel Callon, Pierre Lascoumes, Yannick Barthe, 2011-01-21 A call for a new form of democracy in which hybrid forums composed of experts and laypeople address such sociotechnical controversies as hazardous waste genetically modified organisms and nanotechnology Controversies over such issues as nuclear waste genetically modified organisms asbestos tobacco gene therapy avian flu and cell phone towers arise almost daily as rapid scientific and technological advances create uncertainty and bring about unforeseen concerns The authors of Acting in an Uncertain World argue that political institutions must be expanded and improved to manage these controversies to transform them into productive conversations and to bring about technical democracy They show how hybrid forums in which experts non experts ordinary citizens and politicians come together reveal the limits of traditional delegative democracies in which decisions are made by quasi professional politicians and techno scientific information is the domain of specialists in laboratories The division between professionals and laypeople the authors claim is simply outmoded The authors argue that laboratory research should be complemented by everyday experimentation pursued in the real world and they describe various modes of cooperation between the two They explore a range of concrete examples of hybrid forums that have dealt with sociotechnical controversies including nuclear waste disposal in France industrial waste and birth defects in Japan a childhood leukemia cluster in Woburn Massachusetts and mad cow disease in the United Kingdom The authors discuss the implications for political decision making in general and describe a dialogic democracy that enriches traditional representative democracy To invent new procedures for consultation and representation they suggest is to contribute to an endless process that is necessary for the ongoing democratization of democracy

Greening Berlin Jens

Lachmund, 2013-01-04 How plant and animal species conservation became part of urban planning in Berlin and how the science of ecology contributed to this change Although nature conservation has traditionally focused on the countryside issues of biodiversity protection also appear on the political agendas of many cities One of the emblematic examples of this now worldwide trend has been the German city of Berlin where since the 1970s urban planning has been complemented by a systematic policy of biotope protection at first only in the walled city island of West Berlin but subsequently across the whole of the reunified capital In Greening Berlin Jens Lachmund uses the example of Berlin to examine the scientific and political dynamics that produced this change After describing a tradition of urban greening in Berlin that began in the late nineteenth century Lachmund details the practices of urban ecology and nature preservation that emerged in West Berlin after World War II and have continued in post unification Berlin He tells how ecologists and naturalists created an ecological understanding of urban space on which later nature conservation policy was based Lachmund argues that scientific change in ecology and the new politics of nature mutually shaped or co produced each other under locally specific conditions in Berlin He shows how the practices of ecologists coalesced with administrative practices to form an institutionally embedded and politically consequential nature regime Lachmund's study sheds light not only on the changing place of nature in the modern city but also on the political use of science in environmental conflicts showing the mutual formation of science politics and nature in an urban context

Enjoying the Track of Appearance: An Emotional Symphony within Sorting Things Out Classification And Its Consequences Inside Technology

In a world eaten by displays and the ceaseless chatter of immediate connection, the melodic elegance and mental symphony produced by the published word often disappear in to the backdrop, eclipsed by the constant noise and disturbances that permeate our lives.
