Children's Picture Books and Contemporary Egyptian Society Yasmine Motawy, 2025-02-25 A social and political history of two decades of Egyptian neoliberalism through children's picture books published in Egypt in the post 2000 era Children's picture books are some of the most transparently ideological materials available to parents and educators and as cultural objects they are an expression of the zeitgeist of a particular era They reveal much about the hopes values and aspirations of the society that produces them as well as that society's vision of its place in the wider world at large Children's Picture Books and Contemporary Egyptian Society examines a new wave of Egyptian picture books that was published in the current century to see how these books responded to larger societal trends and transformations in Egypt as well as to explore the ideologies that lie behind them Yasmine Motawy argues that a host of factors including the growth of gated communities and international schooling the proliferation of lucrative literary awards returning Gulf migrants television dramas and nationwide reading advocacy initiatives helped give rise to a new kind of children's picture book in Egypt Motawy focuses on three clusters of selected picture books to investigate the extent to which these books reproduce hegemonic discourses or alternatively open up new horizons of childhood agency and societal transformation The first cluster includes books that directly socialize the child by showing them how things are done in both the domestic sphere and the increasing globalized spaces that children frequent with their families The second cluster aims at reframing cultural notions around femininity through the retelling of folk and fairy tales while the third cluster addresses children's abilities to assess the impact of their actions on their environment and invites them to examine their personal suitability to positions of power and stewardship

THE GIANT CRAB Children's Colouring Book John Halsted, 2017-07-16 The purpose behind this book is not only to give children a lot of enjoyment by freely splashing colour on a page but also to introduce them to one of the UK's best known illustrators W Heath Robinson who is more famous for his illustrations of elaborate machines than he is for illustrations of children's books Herein you will find 51 illustrations he made for the book of old Indian tales titled The Giant Crab Then you may ask Why is this an eBook and not a paperback The answer is quite simple Instead of colouring in a picture once and then throwing away the book when fully used with this ebook you will be able to print off as many of the 51 images as you like and as often as you like ad infinitum In this book children are encouraged to fill in the white spaces on the 51 images At the rear we have provided a few blank templates which children can use to create their own images which can be printed off time and again A few of the original images now over 120 years old were quite small when digitised resulting in blurred outlines when they were enlarged Where this has occurred we have endeavoured to use just about every trick in the digital graphics book to retain the integrity of the outlines All pages have been created to A4 size which is 29.7cm x 21cm or 8.27 x 11.69 The closest American size is Size A or 8.5 x 11.0 William Heath Robinson 31 May 1872 13 September 1944 was an English cartoonist and illustrator best known for drawings of ridiculously complicated machines designed for achieving simple objectives Unfortunately it is for his exquisite children's illustrations which feature in this book that he is less well known In the UK the term Heath Robinson entered the popular vernacular during the 1914-1918 Great War as a description of any unnecessarily complex and implausible contrivance much as Rube Goldberg machines came to be used in the US from the 1920s onwards as a term for similar designs

Handbook of Research on Digital Tools for Writing Instruction in K-12 Settings Anderson, Rebecca S., Mims, Cliff, 2014-04-30 More emphasis is being placed on writing instruction in K-12 schools than ever before With the growing number of digital tools in the classroom it is important that K-12 teachers learn how to use these tools to effectively teach writing in all content areas The Handbook of Research on Digital Tools for Writing Instruction in K-12 Settings will provide research about how students use digital tools to write both in and out of school settings as well as discuss issues and concerns related to the use of these learning methods This publication is beneficial to educators professionals and researchers working in the field of K-12 and teacher education
