Symbols And The Self:

The Meaning of Things Mihaly Csikszentmihalyi, Eugene Halton, 1981-10-30 The meaning of things is a study of the significance of material possessions in contemporary urban life and of the ways people carve meaning out of their domestic environment Drawing on a survey of eighty families in Chicago who were interviewed on the subject of their feelings about common household objects Mihaly Csikszentmihalyi and Eugene Rochberg Halton provide a unique perspective on materialism American culture and the self They begin by reviewing what social scientists and philosophers have said about the transactions between people and things In the model of personhood that the authors develop goal directed action and the cultivation of meaning through signs assume central importance They then relate theoretical issues to the results of their survey An important finding is the distinction between objects valued for action and those valued for contemplation The authors compare families who have warm emotional attachments to their homes with those in which a common set of positive meanings is lacking and interpret the different patterns of involvement They then trace the cultivation of meaning in case studies of four families Finally the authors address what they describe as the current crisis of environmental and material exploitation and suggest that human capacities for the creation and redirection of meaning offer the only hope for survival A wide range of scholars urban and family sociologists clinical developmental and environmental psychologists cultural anthropologists and philosophers and many general readers will find this book stimulating and compelling The Meaning of Things Mihaly Csikszentmihalyi, Eugene Rochberg-Halton, 1987

Self-Sustaining Systems Robert Hirschfeld, Kim Rose, 2008-10-16 The Workshop on Self sustaining Systems S3 is a forum for the discussion of topics relating to computer systems and languages that are able to bootstrap implement modify and maintain themselves One property of these systems is that their implementation is based on small but powerful abstractions examples include amongst others Squeak Smalltalk COLA Klein Self PyPy Python Rubinius Ruby and Lisp Such systems are the engines of their own replacement giving researchers and developers great power to experiment with and explore future directions from within their own small language kernels S3 took place on May 15 16 2008 at the Hasso Plattner Institute HPI in Potsdam Germany It was an exciting opportunity for researchers and practitioners interested in self sustaining systems to meet and share their knowledge experience and ideas for future research and development S3 provided an opportunity for a community to gather and discuss the need for self sustainability in software systems and to share and explore thoughts on why such systems are needed and how they can be created and deployed Analogies were made for example with evolutionary cycles and with urban design and the subsequent inevitable socially driven change The S3 participants left with a greater sense of community and an enthusiasm for probing more deeply into this subject We see the need for self sustaining systems becoming critical not only to the developer's community but to the users in business academia learning and play and so we hope that this S3 workshop will become the first of many Robotics
