

Experience of Symbolic Loss and Actual Loss

Topic: Family, Life & Experiences | Words: 395 | Pages: 1

Studying the main principles of symbolic loss is especially significant for understanding human grief. Many authors have stated the importance of acknowledging symbolic losses and the consequences that are caused by such occurrences (Harris, 2017). Even though symbolic loss is exceptionally different from the actual one, it is still essential to underline the meaning of this phenomenon. This essay will provide a short overview of different symbolic losses and address symbolic and real losses' main distinctions.

Losing a significant person or an environment can often be detrimental to a person's mental health. Walsh (2011) stated that many types of symbolic losses are often unacknowledged, such as the loss of identity during transitional events in life. These kinds of losses commonly manifest when a person moves to an unknown area (Walsh, 2011). Other types of symbolic losses may occur due to health-related reasons, such as losing the ability to walk or speak as a result of an illness (Walsh, 2011). Losing a particular capability or a part of one's health can induce feelings of grief, leading to various mental health issues.

Evaluating the time can sometimes be of great help for the counseling process. Walsh (2011) outlines the need to acknowledge the loss transpiring in different life stages. Some individuals might experience symbolic loss during childhood, adolescence, and older age (Walsh, 2011). Moreover, figurative loss often happens to foster children, and the unrecognized occurrence of such phenomena leads to devastating consequences (Walsh, 2011). Overall, addressing the variety of symbolic

Symbolic Loss Symbolic Loss:

Symbolic Loss Peter Homans, 2000 Historically many world cultures have linked three disparate phenomena collective loss mourning and the construction of monuments and cultural symbols to represent the loss over time and render it memorable meaningful and thereby bearable In a century of great loss observers of western culture have commented on the decline of mourning practices and the absence of their associated rituals The ten essays assembled here by Peter Homans represent in a genuinely interdisciplinary way the recent work of scholars attempting to understand this trend Arranged in sections on cultural studies architecture history and psychology this accessible collection can serve as an introduction to the uses of mourning in contemporary cultures Contributors Paul A Anderson University of Michigan Doris L Bergen University of Notre Dame Mitchell Breitwieser University of California Berkeley Peter Homans University of Chicago Patrick H Hutton University of Vermont Marie Claire Lavabre National Institute for Scientific Research Paris Peter C Shabad Northwestern University Medical School and Columbia Michael Reese Hospital and Medical Center Levi P Smith Art Institute of Chicago Julia Stern Northwestern University James E Young University of Massachusetts Amherst

Alessandra Strada, 2013-06-20 This book in Palliative Care is an evidence based handbook which helps palliative care clinicians identify risk factors and contributing variables to the development of pathological grief reactions implement treatment plans that can adequately minimize the impact of risk factors and provide professional and specific support to patients and families

The Absence of Myth Sophia Heller, 2012-02-01 In this provocative work Sophia Heller challenges the assumption that we cannot be without myth that myth is necessary to vital soulful living Indeed Heller argues we have been living in a world without myth for a long time The Absence of Myth examines the loss of a religious mode of being in the world and demonstrates how theorists who insist on the presence of myth deny its historical end Absence of myth may seem obvious evidenced by our lack of cult and ritual and by our de animated natural world as well as in the emergence of conceptual thought and psychological awareness which could only arise with the dissolution of a prereflective mythic mode of being in the world But what appears to be straightforward becomes complicated when myth is intentionally conflated with thought and reflection usually in the attempt to cultivate a mythic consciousness that aims to restore meaning to life and assuage the spiritual malaise of contemporary culture Myth cannot rest in peace It must be continually unearthed redefined and recontextualized such that modern and postmodern notions of myth are made to substitute for something that has never been experienced only imagined
