Postapocalyptic Fiction and the Social Contract Claire P. Curtis, 2010-07-17 Postapocalyptic Fiction and the Social Contract We'll Not Go Home Again provides a framework for our fascination with the apocalyptic events. The popular appeal of the end of the world genre is clear in movies, novels, and television shows. Even our political debates over global warming, nuclear threats, and pandemic disease reflect a concern about the possibility of such events. This popular fascination is really a fascination with survival: how can we come out alive? And what would we do next? The end of the world is not about species death but about beginning again. This book uses postapocalyptic fiction as a terrain for thinking about the state of nature, the hypothetical fiction that is the driving force behind the social contract. The first half of the book examines novels that tell the story of the move from the state of nature to civil society through a Hobbesian, a Lockean, or a Rousseauian lens, including Lucifer's Hammer by Larry Niven and Jerry Pournelle, Alas Babylon by Pat Frank, Malevil by Robert Merle, and Into the Forest by Jean Hegland. The latter half of the book examines Octavia Butler's postapocalyptic Parable series, in which a new kind of social contract emerges, one built on the fact of human dependence and vulnerability.

Contemporary Women's Post-Apocalyptic Fiction Susan Watkins, 2020-02-29 This book examines how contemporary women novelists have successfully transformed and rewritten the conventions of post-apocalyptic fiction. Since the dawn of the new millennium, there has been an outpouring of writing that depicts the end of the world as we know it, and women writers are no exception to this trend. However, the book argues that their fiction is distinctive. Contemporary women's work in this genre avoids conservatism, a nostalgic mourning for the past, and the focus on restoring what has been lost, aspects key to much male-authored apocalyptic fiction. Instead, contemporary women writers show readers the ways in which patriarchy and neo colonialism are intrinsically implicated in the disasters they envision and offer qualified hope for a new beginning for society culture and literature after an imagined apocalyptic event Exploring science nature and matter the posthuman body the maternal imaginary time narrative and history literature and the word and the post secular the book covers a wide variety of writers and addresses issues of nationality race and ethnicity as well as gender and sexuality
