Slavery in Latin America

European nations conquered and expanded rapidly in Latin America from the 1400s to the late 1800s. This was part of the "New World". There was a huge demand for labor forces to establish, operate, and maintain the interests of the European countries in Latin America. The labor was mostly needed in farming the various crops. The most commonly exported crops were sugarcane and coffee. These farms were called plantations and haciendas. Plantations mostly grew crops for exports, while haciendas grew crops for the colonies. The Europeans first used the indigenous people to for labor of these plantations and haciendas. Indigenous people were the original inhabitants of Latin America. They were there before the Europeans arrived.

Unfortunately for the locals, the Europeans also brought diseases. One disease that the Europeans brought was smallpox. The diseases brought by the Europeans would eventually kill off most of the indigenous populations. They had not been exposed to these diseases before and had little resistance to fight the diseases.

Due to the high numbers of death in the indigenous populations, the Europeans needed more labor. The Spanish and Portuguese began shipping slaves from West Africa to Latin America. The shipping of slaves is known as the Transatlantic Slave Trade. It is estimated that as many as fifteen million slaves were shipped from West Africa to Latin America. The conditions aboard the slave ships were terrible. Oftentimes, many slaves would perish on the journey from West Africa to Latin America due to the lack of sanitation and clean drinking water. The African slaves would be forced to work in horrible conditions on plantations, haciendas, and gold mines. Slavery would continue in Latin America through the late 1800s, even after slavery was abolished in Europe.

Through the use of west African slaves, plantations were able to thrive. These thriving plantations made money for Spain and Portugal, empowering their countries and allowing them for further expansion of Latin America.
