Abstract

Ovarian malignancy the third most common gynecological malignancy and is the leading cause of death in women. Non-specific clinical presentation delays the diagnosis, and they often present in the advanced stage of disease. No imaging modality is recommended for screening as there is no significant mortality reduction. Ultrasound (USG) is usually the initial modality in suspected ovarian mass. MRI is recommended for the characterization of indeterminate ovarian or adnexal mass on USG. CT abdomen and pelvis with oral and IV contrast is the recommended imaging modality in staging the disease, predicting the resectability and in selecting the patients who would benefit from neoadjuvant chemotherapy. Early ovarian cancers are staged by post-surgical histology and undergo upfront surgery. Advanced disease benefit by neoadjuvant chemotherapy and less morbidity by interval cytoreduction where image-guided biopsy is performed for histological diagnosis. Follow-up recommendations are based on tumor histology. CT/PET CT is recommended for diagnosing recurrence.

The SAGES Manual of Strategic Decision Making Carol E.H. Scott-Conner, José E. Torres, Nate Thepjatri, 2008-06-19 Minimal access whenever feasible in the performance of most general surgical procedures is now well established However many areas still need clarification They range from indications and contraindications to the optimal route of access as well as to choices to be made among the various procedures possible for any single surgical problem This Manual is unique in that unlike most manuals it is not so much a how to but more a when to the how to having been covered to a significant extent in the two previous SAGES manuals This work takes a series of common clinical scenarios and offers various detailed often contrasting approaches commonly but not exclusively minimal access discussing indications limitations and potential complications In this age of evidence based surgical practice the reader will find it refreshing to have abundant data and references to support or reject a particular approach or technique With a cadre of surgeon authors skilled in open as well as minimal access surgery including exible endoscopy the student and practitioner of surgery is exposed to not only varying approaches to many common surgical conditions but also comes to appreciate how exibility and integration of various approaches can improve the outcome for the patient The forty six chapters can each constitute a stand alone discussion
