Turning Point Essay (Daisy Meeting Gatsby)/
Interior Monologue (Daisy)

"Is this absolutely where you live, my dearest one?"

He stared at me strangely for a moment before coming to help me from my car.

"Are you in love with me", I asked. "Or why did I have to come alone?"

"That's the secret of Castle Rackrent. Tell your chauffeur to go far away and spend an hour."

"No, that's quite alright, he can stay here can't he?"

"I suppose, if you insist."

"Wait here, Ferdie. I'll be back in an hour"

We walked inside and through his hallway until we reached the living room.

"Well, that's funny!", Nick muttered.

Just as I was about to ask what he meant, there was a knock at the door, followed by inaudible whispers until a man stepped into the room. It took me a moment, but his face was unmistakable. It was Jay Gatsby. I began to speak, but choked on my words as memories of a better--no, a simpler-- time were instantly rehashed.

"It's been so long!", I said as he leaned against the mantelpiece.

"Five years, come this November."

"What, might I ask, brought you here?"

He stopped for a moment, as to contemplate what to say next.

"You", he said.

And by that word, it all made sense. The invitation for lunch, the contingency of not bringing Tom, it was all Gatsby's design, come to retake what he had lost so long ago--me. And what a wonderful time it was, so long ago, with nothing but ourselves and the future ahead of us. Unfortunately, that was no longer the case. Now, I had a husband, a child, a life here. And by this, it was decided.

"No", I said solemnly, as I walked past Gatsby and down the ever-lengthening hallway to Nick's front door, leaving the possibility of a new life behind. Opening the door, I stopped in the doorway and closed my eyes. Letting the dreams of a life without consequence leave my mind, I stepped outside. The rain had stopped, the air smelled fresh. I returned to the car. "Take me home. Quickly, please. I must speak with Tom", I paused. "I must speak with him about everything."

reflexive interventions in the responses to the attacks the initial representations of the attacks and the ever shifting social and geopolitical continuities of the 9 11 decade These texts widen the conversation about the lasting impacts of 9 11 and incorporate strands of discussion on American exceptionalism and imperialism torture and otherness whilst still remaining invested in the personal and collective traumas of the attacks The authors included here ask crucial questions about the way 9 11 is being historicized will it for example be read as a moment of rupture or epoch Will it inevitably be attached to the War on Terror or the Wars in Iraq and Afghanistan As they trace the emergent patterns of reflexivity politicization and dissent the contributions here are also implicitly invested in asking how far they extend
