The topic frequency graph provides an overview of the most prevalent themes discussed by UK university students on Reddit over time. Notably, while students report diverse concerns, the data reveals a recurring trend for all topics as the subreddit grows in popularity over time. Frequent topics, encompassing the data observed, include the relative prevalence of each topic over time. Among the top topics, we find a mix of academic concerns (e.g., accommodation, university applications), social aspects (e.g., finding friends, loneliness), and personal well-being (e.g., mental health, finance). First, the prevalence of topics such as job, university choice and applications, accommodation and finance highlight the practical challenges that students face in their university journey. Clearly, students use such social media platforms as an avenue of seeking help and advice from other UK university students who have experienced similar concerns. These discussions not only provide valuable peer-to-peer support but also offer insights into the common struggles and decision-making processes of students.

Secondly, the prevalence of topics such as mental health and loneliness (Topic 4) is consistently high across the entire timeline. This observation aligns with global trends, where mental health issues have become a significant concern for students worldwide. Thirdly, the prevalence of topics such as financial struggles (Topic 2) and housing issues (Topic 8) is also consistently high, reflecting the economic challenges that students face. These findings suggest that while the specific concerns of students may vary, the overall themes of academic pressure, financial struggles, social life, and personal well-being remain central to the university experience.
