Imagine a giant box is delivered to your front doorstep with your name on it. What's inside and what happens when you open it?

Write a short story about what it might be like if you woke up one morning with a mermaid tail.

Write about what would it be like if you had an alligator as a pet.

If you were in charge of the whole world, what would you do to make the world a happier place?

Imagine that dogs take over the world. What do they make the humans do?

Write about 3 places you would like to travel someday. What do these three places have in common?

Write a poem that starts with the word "if".

How do you feel when someone takes something of yours without asking? What is a good way to deal with it when that happens?

Imagine you walk out your front door one morning and it is raining popcorn! What do you do?

Reading and Writing for Pleasure Teresa Cremin, Helen Hendry, Liz Chamberlain, Samantha Jayne Hulston, 2025-09-12 Reading and writing for pleasure represent issues of global concern and interest in policy research and practice underpinned by evidence illustrating their importance for young people s academic social and emotional experiences and outcomes In the face of a sustained decline in children s enjoyment in both reading and writing this highly significant book presents findings from a three year study of research and practice that nurtures young people's engagement as readers and writers. The book offers a rich understanding of the study highlighting the commonalities and synergies identified from the research literature and diverse practice contexts. It introduces a new and powerful Reading and Writing Framework for Practice for schools and charitable literacy programmes. The authors offer practical strategies and recommendations throughout for practitioners, researchers and policy makers who wish to advance this agenda in their own contexts. Areas covered include: The nature of reading and writing for pleasure; Literate identities; Motivating readers and writers; Social interactions; Role models and connected communities; Future research practice and policy. This field defining text is a key resource for all those committed to halting the decline in young people's engagement as volitional readers and writers.

Handbook of Creativity John A. Glover, Royce R. Ronning, Cecil R. Reynolds, 2013-03-09. The motivation underlying our development of a handbook of creativity was different from what usually is described by editors of other such volumes. Our sense that a handbook was needed sprang not from a deluge of highly erudite studies calling out for organization nor did it stem from a belief that the field had become so fully articulated that such a book was necessary to provide summation and reference. Instead this handbook was conceptualized as an attempt to provide structure and organization for a field of study that from our perspective had come to be a large scale example of a degenerating research program. See Brown Chapter 1. The handbook grew out of a series of discussions that spanned several years. At the heart of most of our interactions was a profound unhappiness with the state of research on creativity. Our consensus was that the number of good works published on creativity each year was small and growing smaller. Further we could not point to a journal text or professional organization that was providing leadership for the field in shaping a scientifically sound framework for the development of research programs in creativity. At the same time we were casting about for a means of honoring a dear friend E. Paul Torrance. Our decision was that we might best be able to honor Paul and influence research on creativity by developing a handbook designed to challenge traditional perspectives while offering research agendas based on contemporary psychological views.

Writing Academic Texts Differently Nina Lykke, 2014-06-27. This edited volume combines cutting edge research on feminist and intersectional writing methodologies with explorations of links between academic and creative writing practices. Contributors discuss what it means for academic writing processes to explore intersectionality in between spaces between monolithic identity markers and power differentials such as gender, race, ethnicity class sexuality and nationality How does such a frame change academic writing How does it make it pertinent to explore new synergies between academic and creative writing In answer to these questions the book offers theories methodologies political and ethical considerations as well as reflections on writing strategies Suggestions for writing exercises developed against the background of the contributors individual and joint teaching practices will inspire readers to engage in alternative writing practices themselves
