Late Victorian Holocausts Mike Davis,2002-06-17 This global environmental and political history will redefine the way we think about the European colonial project Observer sets the triumph of the late 19th century Western imperialism in the context of catastrophic El Niño weather patterns at that time groundbreaking mind stretching The Independent Examining a series of El Niño induced droughts and the famines that they spawned around the globe in the last third of the 19th century Mike Davis discloses the intimate baleful relationship between imperial arrogance and natural incident that combined to produce some of the worst tragedies in human history Late Victorian Holocausts focuses on three zones of drought and subsequent famine India Northern China and Northeastern Brazil All were affected by the same global climatic factors that caused massive crop failures and all experienced brutal famines that decimated local populations But the effects of drought were magnified in each case because of singularly destructive policies promulgated by different ruling elites Davis argues that the seeds of underdevelopment in what later became known as the Third World were sown in this era of High Imperialism as the price for capitalist modernization was paid in the currency of millions of peasants lives

Making Peoples James Belich,2002-02-28 Now in paper This immensely readable book full of drama and humor as well as scholarship is a watershed in the writing of New Zealand history In making many new assertions and challenging many historical myths it seeks to reinterpret our approach to the past Given New Zealand s small population short history and great isolation the history of the archipelago has been saddled with a reputation for mundanity According to James Belich however it is just these characteristics that make New Zealand a historian s paradise a laboratory whose isolation size and recency is an advantage in which the grand themes of world history are often played out more rapidly more separately and therefore more discernably than elsewhere The first of two planned volumes Making Peoples begins with the Polynesian settlement and its development into the Maori tribes in the eleventh century It traces the great encounter between independent Maoridom and expanding Europe from 1642 to 1916 including the foundation of the Pakeha the neo Europeans of New Zealand between the 1830s and the 1880s It describes the forging of a neo Polynesia and a neo Britain and the traumatic interaction between them The author carefully examines the myths and realities that drove the colonialization process and suggests a new living version of one of the most critical and controversial documents in New Zealand s history the Treaty of Waitangi frequently described as New Zealand s Magna Carta The construction of peoples Maori and Pakeha is a recurring theme the response of each to the great shift from extractive to sustainable economics their relationship with their Hawaiis or ancestors with each other and with myth Essential reading for anyone interested in New Zealand history and in the history of new societies in general

Climate Change And The Cargo Cult Chris Cunningham,2019-01-31 Climate Change is a major threat to our way of life and requires urgent political action to remedy its many threats but is it a symptom rather than the disease This book argues that the problem lies deep in our commitment to the quest for ever increasing economic growth At some time in the 1970s the Western World passed a point of economic satiety beyond which further economic growth was of little benefit and indeed was counter productive to living the good life We must therefore seek a better understanding of our environment and of what constitutes genuine wealth Life without the frenetic economic activity and culture of selfish possession that drives the modern economy can indeed be more humane more pleasant and more meaningful than what we have today but to reach it will require a major re evaluation of what is important in business politics and culture United States Reports
