Robinson,Michael Eid,2017-06-28 This edited volume focuses on different views of happiness and well being considering constructs like meaning and spirituality in addition to the more standard constructs of positive emotion and life satisfaction A premise of the volume is that being happy consists of more than having the right things happen to us it also depends on how we interpret those events as well as what we are trying to achieve Such considerations suggest that cognitive emotional factors should play a fairly pronounced role in how happy we are The present volume pursues these themes in the context of 25 chapters organized into 5 sections The first section centers on cognitive variables such as attention and executive function in addition to mindfulness The second section considers important sources of positive cognition such as savoring and optimism and the third section focuses on self regulatory contributions to well being Finally social processes are covered in a fourth section and meaning related processes are covered in the fifth What results is a rich and diverse volume centering on the ways in which our minds can help or hinder our aspirations for happiness A Wealth of Well-Being Meir

The Personal Experience of Time B. Gorman, 2013-03-09 The fundamental nature of human time experience has concerned artists poets philosophers and scientists throughout the ages Any consideration of human action requires awareness of its temporal aspects However simply to view time in the same units and dimensions as the physicist employs in describing events robs personal time of its lived quality The use of physical time concepts in the description of human events is often artificial and misleading It fails to account for the facts that human time estimates rarely match clock and calendar time that societies and individuals demonstrate vast differences in their constructions and uses of time and that temporal perceptions and attitudes change within an individual both during a single day and throughout his life span The present volume does not view time as something that is sensed in the same way that one would sense or perceive spatial or sensory stimuli Rather it views time as a complex set of personally experienced cognitive constructs used by individuals and cultures to account for the order the duration and the organization of events The authors in this book take a strong departure from earlier psychophysical studies of a time sense and address themselves to the uses and elaborations of time concepts in personal and social functioning
